

Someday, Someone Out There

By Ivanna Zoe Olvera Rojas

Once Upon A Time, two stars were born, and together they shone, lighting the night sky as if they were one. Once Upon A Time, two stars died, with the promise to Someday, reunite.

When will I find the one that makes the butterflies inside go wild? When will the call of love finally knock on my door?
Will I ever find the boy that makes the wait worth all this pain?

How can I give her my heart when I'm so afraid of my walls falling apart? How can I even fall in love when of let-downs I'm done?
Will I ever find the girl that makes getting hurt feel like an adventure and not like a burn?

Do you think about me when you look up at the stars?
Do you wish you'd find me just like I'm doing right now?
Will you love me even when you see my most vulnerable side? Will you trust me when I say I see your heart even if your face I don't yet recognise?

Someday, Someone Out There

Dear Patience, please hold on 'cause he's somewhere, out in the world, ready to give me his most tender love.

Dear Patience, please wait, 'cause she's somewhere, out there, ready to prove right my faith.

Maybe Someday I will dance to his song,
Or maybe Someday I will sing to her tune,
A song so endearing, Or a tune that makes it worth living, That the notes that make up our souls Will harmonize as if they had always belonged.

And then, someday became today,
And there he was, hoping for me,
And there she was, waiting for me, there he was, with arms full of warmth, there she was, with eyes full of life.

Now that our souls have harmonized, and our hearts are mesmerized, I promise to hold your hand while we dance at night. I promise to guide your heart, so we always see the light.

From then on, they knew they would be alright, because even in the unknown, they kept on with hope, knowing that someday they would find their love.